Religious Services.

Rev. P. WILEY, of the M. E. Church, of this place, is now delivering a series of lectures, Sabbath evenings, to young men. His lecture last Sunday evening was very interesting, and showed that the subject matter had been well matured. The young men of our town cannot do better than to attend these lectures, if they continue to be as interesting as they have been so far. We would modestly suggest, that, after he gets through with this course of lectures, he deliver a few to some of the young ladies of this place, and those, too, that are in the habit of attending his church, and making themselves appear ridiculous by their bad behavior. Such young ladies should be kept at home by their ma's until they learn how to behave themselves more decently, and annoy well behaved persons by their ludicrous actions.

There is another thing we cannot refrain from saying a word about while we are speaking of the church, and that is, the torturing manner in which the congregation is in the habit of singing. We charge nothing for our suggestions, and therefore proceed to say, that they should at once take some measures to have better singing. It makes no difference how old the tunes may be, for old tunes are generally good, if they are sung with any spirit, but we should hate to hear our friends say that they sing with either the spirit or the understanding. There is no excuse for torturing good hymns so cruelly. As a general thing, congregational singing is about twice as slow as it should be. This is the fault of a few that "lead," or, in other words, hold everybody else back by their dragging the word and syllable out in a manner that is perfectly denuding to everything like sentiment or sense—stop in the middle of a word to take breath, and many other faults that we will not here mention. What is true of this is also true of almost every other church and denomination.

We have made these remarks in the best of feeling, and hope our friends will profit by them. If they do not, we shall rest assured that what we have said "is not make matters any worse than they now are. It is with singing as with preaching or anything else—it has to be learned."

Mr. J. W. Gross advertises in our Paper this week, his new Saddlery Shop, at Bourbon. Mr. Gross is one of those sensible men who know, that to do business successfully, you must let the people know you are ready to do it. Advertising pays. Good work—good stock, and fair dealing, is Mr. Gross's motto—Give him a call.

Jonas W. Houghton, Freight and Express Agent, at Bourbon, "still lives," and is doing business to the satisfaction of all concerned. He's the "right man in the right place," and the Company acted wisely when they gave Jonas that appointment.

We are now over the hurry and trouble attending the first issue of a Newspaper—the machinery works smoothly, and here we are, kind reader, sleeves rolled up, hard at work, ready and "keen" to do all kinds of Jon Work, or furnish you a Paper at once instructive and Agreeable.

ONLY THINK! One single cord of Wood, at the present price, pays for ONE YEAR'S subscription to this Paper!
